State Issues Assault Weapon Certificates of Possession

May 19, 2023

On June 30, 2022, Gov. Carney signed into law the Delaware Lethal Firearms Safety Act of 2022 prohibiting the manufacture, sale, offer to sell, transfer, purchase, receipt, possession, or transport of assault weapons in Delaware, subject to certain exceptions. One such exception to the Act's ban is for individuals who lawfully possessed, or who had completed a purchase of, the weapon prior to June 30, 2022. The Act requires that the Department of Safety and Homeland Security ("DSHS") issue certificates of possession to individuals who meet this exception. Individuals lawfully possessing an assault weapon pursuant to this exception to the ban are not required to request a certificate of possession, but the Act provides that the certificates of possession constitute "conclusive evidence" that a person lawfully possessed or had completed a purchase of an assault weapon before June 30, 2022, and is entitled to possess and transport the weapon on or after that date.

DSHS will offer certificates of possession to Delaware residents at the locations and on the dates below.
